

Contents

Introduction to the historical-hermeneutical reading of Raphael's School of Athens	13
Different ways of reading and understanding the School of Athens	13
The beginning, development and completion of this work	15
The medallion representing Philosophy above the School of Athens	17
The building and the background of the scene	19
A representation of the Platonic idea of levels of knowledge with philosophy at the top	21
The great pictorial representation of the history of Greek thought from a Platonic point of view ...	26
The representation of the first group of figures on the bottom left	29
The Presocratic philosophers influenced by Orphism	30
The three characters on the top left	31
The group of characters at the centre of the left hand side of the fresco	32
The group of Platonists and the statue of Apollo .	33
The group of Aristotelians	34
Diogenes the Cynic	35

Contents

The group of Geometers, and the teacher with disciple	35
The figure of Plotinus	36
Ptolemy and Zoroaster	36
The remaining figures on the right hand side of the fresco	37
The question of the model that might have inspired Raphael	37
Concluding remarks	41

Cartoon and Fresco of the School of Athens

Images of the Fresco	47
----------------------------	----

The Historical-Hermeneutical Reading of Raphael's School of Athens	73
--	-----------

Representation of the ceremony of an Orphic rite and the statue of Apollo	75
---	----

Orphism and its significance in Greek philosophy; the figure of the priest – Apollo and his meaning

The group of the Pre-Socratic philosophers inspired by Orphism	85
--	----

Pythagoras with a group of listeners – The philosopher Empedocles – The young man in the white toga and how to interpret him – The philosopher Heraclitus portrayed as Michelangelo Buonarroti

The group of Sophists chased away by a Socratic philosopher	101
Representation of Socrates and the Socratics	105
Plato and the Platonists	113
Aristotle and the Aristotelians	119
Diogenes the Cynic	125
The group of geometers	129
Euclid portrayed as Bramante and the symbolic meaning of the disciples
The group of figures on the top right-hand side with Plotinus in the centre	131
A master and a writing disciple – The emblematic figure of Plotinus – Ptolemy and Zoroaster and three late Cynics – The painter’s double auto-graph – The image of Athena and its meaning
Bibliography.....	144