

Content

List of abbreviations.....	10
Acknowledgements.....	12
Preface.....	13
1 Transculturality in a postcolonial world.....	16
1.1 What is intercultural philosophy?.....	16
1.2 Globalisation and multiculturalism.....	23
1.3 Critical approaches to intercultural philosophy.....	25
1.4 Decolonising philosophy.....	33
1.5 Foucault's heterotopias and the challenge of transculturality.....	36
2 Silence in Indian philosophy.....	42
2.1 The heterodox tradition.....	43
2.1.1 Anekāntavāda and inexpressibility.....	43
2.1.1.1 Nayavāda and Syādvāda	45
2.1.1.2 Saptabhaṅgī – Jaina logic of sevenfold predication.....	48
2.1.1.3 Avaktavya	50
2.1.2 Nāgārjuna's Mādhyamika	53
2.1.2.1 On causality.....	57
2.1.2.2 Sūnyavāda or the emptiness of emptiness.....	59
2.1.2.3 Catuṣkoṭi and the relinquishing of views.....	62
2.1.2.4 Nirvāṇa as non-functioning of language.....	64
2.2 Vedic philosophy and silence.....	69
2.2.1 Śaṅkara's Advaitavāda	70
2.2.1.1 Māyāvāda and language.....	75
2.2.1.2 The rope and the snake: A metaphorical exploration.....	78
2.2.1.3 Māyā as illusion?.....	82
2.2.1.4 Anirvākanīya	86
2.3 Resume.....	89
2.4 Silencing in the Indian philosophical discourse.....	89
2.4.1 The argumentative Indian.....	90
2.4.2 Historicising ancient India.....	91
2.4.3 Formations of power: The construction of the 'Other'.....	95
2.4.3.1 Speech and exclusion.....	98
2.4.3.2 In the name of truth.....	100
2.4.3.3 Silence and violence: Caste and gender.....	101

2.4.4	The heterodox challenge	105
2.4.5	Philosopher as renouncer	108
2.4.6	En-Gendering silence	112
2.4.7	Resume: The re-turn to orthodoxy	120
3	Silence in Western philosophy	122
3.1	“The Unthought” in Heidegger	123
3.1.1	Early Heidegger	126
3.1.1.1	Dasein and language	127
3.1.1.2	Being and truth	131
3.1.2	Later Heidegger	133
3.1.2.1	Being and language	134
3.1.2.1.1	Language and representation	140
3.1.2.1.2	Beyond technological thinking	144
3.1.2.1.3	Thinking, listening, poetry	145
3.1.2.1.4	Nothingness	148
3.1.2.2	Sigetics	150
3.1.2.2.1	The language of silence	152
3.1.2.2.2	“Saying not-saying”	155
3.2	Wittgenstein on silence	157
3.2.1	What can(not) be said	159
3.2.1.1	Showing and saying	163
3.2.1.2	Nonsense	165
3.2.2	Later Wittgenstein	171
3.2.2.1	Meaning and use	173
3.2.2.2	Language as game	175
3.2.2.3	Following rules	178
3.2.2.4	“Languaged Reality”: Solipsism and private language....	179
3.2.3	On philosophy	182
3.3	Resume	187
3.4	Interrogating Heidegger’s and Wittgenstein’s silences	188
3.5	Foucault versus Derrida: The other side of silence	197
3.5.1	Foucault’s archaeology of silence	198
3.5.1.1	Madness and representation	201
3.5.1.2	The Cartesian exclusion	205
3.5.2	Derrida’s challenge	208
3.5.3	Foucault responds	216
3.5.4	Derridean deconstruction	219

